Travis Scott is due to release his new album Birds In The Trap Sing Brian McKnight on August 26. The G.O.O.D. Music rapper is set to be in the U.K. when the much delayed album drops, with an appearance at the Reading & Leeds Festival scheduled after a short headline tour. However, Scott has pulled out of two of the dates on the tour with news that tonight's gig in Dublin and an August 23 show Glasgow have been axed due to delays in finishing the record.

"Due to his album mixes delay Travis Scott has been forced to cancel his shows in Dublin and Glasgow today and tomorrow," promoters MCD wrote on Facebook. "He was hoping to have this all finished in time to travel but unfortunately due to unforeseen circumstances it isn't. Refunds are available at point of purchase."

The FADER has reached out to Scott's rep and confirmed that his shows at London's Shepherds Bush Empire on August 25-26 plus his appearance at Reading & Leeds Festival are going ahead as planned.
